

Oral Presentation

Oral presentations, also known as public speaking or simply presentations, consist of an individual or group verbally addressing an audience on a particular topic.

Annual scientific meetings serve as a forum for the dissemination of new research findings. The presentations of these meetings should be of high scientific quality because they have the potential to impact future research projects and current clinical practice. Moreover, the publication of these findings as full articles is extremely important to increase its dissemination. Unfortunately, while evaluating the publication rate of 307,028 abstracts presented in biomedical meetings, a systematic review reported that only 37.3% were further published, leaving a great number of studies restricted to the events.

Oral Presentations of the 2021 Annual Meeting of the Congress of Neurological Surgeons: Austin, Texas October 16-20, 2021. Neurosurgery. 2022 Apr 1;68(Supplement_1):27-144. doi: 10.1227/NEU.0000000000001880. Epub 2022 Mar 1. PMID: 36069697.
